Something Worth Fighting For
There was a man up front and said there is a word from God and I got excited and tuned in to see who was bringing forth this word and what God wanted us to know... just then the man stretched out his arm at me and said will you come.....I was surprised but I got up without hesitation and began to make my way to the front on the way I was asking God what do you have for me to say. Abstracts of words should be sent to Eric Athenot by December 15, Questioning the association of modernity with secularization as a secure foothold for criticism implies searching for what escapes the process of secularization in poetic writing.
